

SYA 4930: Media & Culture

UF Online Course

Instructor: Grant Jones

Contact Methods

Email (Preferred): grant.jones@ufl.edu

Telephone: (270) 724-0320

Note: If you plan to reach me by phone, know that I may not respond to unknown numbers. If possible, give me a heads up via email that I may be expecting a call.

For technical issues pertaining to this online course, contact the UFL Helpdesk at <http://helpdesk.ufl.edu> or (352) 392-4357.

Office Hours

As this class is a fully-online class, I will have online office hours via Zoom every week on Mondays from 3:00 PM – 5:00 PM. The Zoom link for these office hours will be available on our class's Canvas page, but if you are unable to find the link, please email me and I will gladly send the link for these hours to you.

Additionally, I greatly encourage you to email if you have any questions in this course. Though I have office hours only on Mondays at the time mentioned above, I will also be open to meeting with any of you by appointment. If you wish to meet via Zoom at any other time, just send me an email and let me know what possible days and times would work well for you. And of course, if you would rather just ask your questions via email rather than meeting on Zoom, you are more than welcome to do so.

Regarding the Course

Our class is held fully online and will not have any scheduled class meetings. Instead, lecture videos will be recorded and posted every Monday (usually at 11:59 PM on the previous night). All assignments will be posted on Canvas, and none of this class's assessments will require any in-person proctoring.

Some assignments for this class may require students to be audio-visually recorded. Students who participate with their camera engaged or utilize a profile image are agreeing to have their video or image recorded. If you are unwilling to consent to have your profile or video image recorded, be sure to keep your camera off and do not use a profile image. Likewise, students who participate verbally in certain recorded assignments are agreeing to have their voices recorded. Note that this likely will only apply to the group project, and if there are any concerns in this regard, feel free to contact me.

Course Objectives

The purpose of Media & Culture is to set a foundation of key concepts, elements, and terminology pertaining to modern media and its sociological connects and implications. Students will be shown how sociological thought and concepts apply to the world of digital media, and will also be shown examples of how the concepts discussed in this course manifest themselves in real life. The point of this course is to provide a broader understanding of media's role in a modern society through the lens of Sociology.

Class Attendance, Make-Up Exams, Etc.

Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at:

<http://catalog.ufl.edu/UGRD/academic-regulations/attendance-policies>

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities who experience learning barriers and would like to request academic accommodations should connect with the disability Resource Center by visiting <https://disability.ufl.edu/students/get-started/>. It is important for students to share their accommodation letter with their instructor and discuss their access needs, as early as possible in the semester.

Course Evaluations

Students are expected to provide professional and respectful feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing course evaluations online via GatorEvals. Guidance on how to give feedback in a professional and respectful manner is available at <http://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/students/>. Students will be notified when the evaluation period opens, and can complete evaluations through the email they receive from GatorEvals, in their Canvas course menu under GatorEvals, or via ufl.bluera.com/ufl/. Summaries of course evaluation results are available to students at <http://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/public-results/>.

Types of Assessments

Note from the Instructor

This syllabus will provide details on how I expect each of you to complete these assessments, but I also plan to post a video explaining my expectations to the Canvas page for this course. Furthermore, if you run into any issues or are confused about any requirements, do not hesitate to email me for further clarification.

Discussion Board

Each week, you will be provided a unique discussion prompt in the discussion board on our course's Canvas page. These prompts will be related to the content discussed in that week's lecture video. In order to receive full credit for these posts, you must provide *at least a three to four paragraph response to these prompts. Specific instructions on what is expected for each week's discussion requirement will be specified in the discussion board post for that prompt.

Discussion prompts will be posted to the discussion board every Sunday at 11:59 PM unless otherwise specified, and responses will be due the following Saturday at 11:59 PM.

Reproducing Inequality (R.I.) Responses

In each chapter of New Media & Society – the textbook for our class – the author includes a section called “Reproducing Inequality.” These sections aim to provide some real-world context for the concepts being discussed in that chapter. As such, I believed it would be a beneficial endeavor to have you all provide a response to each of these – totaling 6 responses, one per chapter. These R.I. Responses will be assigned on the same day the last lecture for that chapter is posted. These dates will be outlined in the Weekly Schedule in this syllabus and on Canvas.*

Each R.I. response should be approximately four to five paragraphs in length. For these responses, students should provide their informal reactions to the “Reproducing Inequality” section from that chapter, discuss how prevalent they think this inequality is in a modern society, and discuss what examples of this inequality in the real world that they have seen – from their own life, the lives of others around them, or in the news. In addition to this, students should find one example video from the media – television, film, the news, or in music – that they believe fits this topic, then discuss how this form of inequality is well-showcased in that example.

* Note that the weekly schedule is subject to change if necessary, so it is encouraged to reference the schedule on Canvas rather than the one in this syllabus just in case a change occurs.

Quizzes

There will be a 10 question quiz posted each week on Sundays at 11:59 PM (unless otherwise specified), and each quiz will be due on the following Saturday at 11:59 PM. These quizzes will be open-note, open-text, and open-lecture, and largely serve to ensure students have acknowledged and have a basic understanding of the core concepts discussed that week.

Group Project

As part of this course, you will be tasked with completing a group project. Students will be required to form groups consisting of approximately three people. This group project involves providing and analyzing examples from the media (TV, film, music, etc.) of different sociological concepts. Keep in mind that this project will be discussed in greater detail as we get closer to the end of the semester.

This group project is separated into three stages:

Stage 1: Students will be assigned groups and will be tasked with selecting two concepts discussed in the course up until that point. On Canvas, I will provide a list of which concepts you can choose from, though this list will likely include almost every major concept discussed up until that point in the class. If you would like to propose a unique concept that is not on that list, you may do so, but be sure to do so as soon as possible so that I can determine if that concept will work well for this project or not.

The concepts chosen by each group member must be unique from the concepts chosen by the other group members, so discuss your concept choices with your group members before making a submission. I will then select one of these concepts to assign to each group member. To be clear, each group member will submit two concepts, then each member will be assigned one of their own submitted concepts to use in the group project.

For both of the concepts specified, each student must also provide two example videos. Both of these example videos should showcase how their concept shows up in the media. For example, if you chose the concept “cyber family,” you should find two videos that showcase cyber families, such as a clip from a television show that showcases how a family in that show maintains contact or keeps track of each other using social media, or a clip from a movie that shows how an obsession with digital media – such as phones – can distract the family members and weaken their relationship with each other.

Each concept has many potential examples you could include, which is why Stage 1 will not be due until Wednesday, 11/16 at 11:59 PM. It is highly encouraged that students submit Stage 1 as soon as possible so that if there are any concerns with the concepts or examples chosen, they can be addressed and the student will have time to resubmit Stage 1.

(Note: If there is an upcoming concept that is not on the list and has yet to be discussed that a student wishes to use for this project, they must contact me as soon as possible in order to determine if that concept will be viable or not)

Stage 2: Each student will write their own portion of a group paper discussing their chosen concepts (only the concepts I assigned to you following Stage 1) and examples. In this paper, each student will first explain or define their concept as clearly as possible. After this, students will discuss how they have seen this concept in the real world – from their own life or in the lives of those around them. This first part of the paper should be at least 3 paragraphs long.

For the second part of the paper, students will discuss their first example. For about 1 paragraph, students will describe what their example is, stating what type of media the example is from, what the show / movie / song / etc. is about, and any other important details about this example. Then, students will provide about 2 paragraphs describing how their concept shows up in this example and why they believe their example showcases their concept well. Following this, students will provide another 2 paragraphs discussing why they think this chosen concept is important to learn about, research, or discuss in a sociological context. This process will then be repeated for the second example.

Once each member has completed their section of the paper, each section must be combined into one group paper. The way you combine this paper is primarily up to your group, but I do specify that each paper should be:

- Double-spaced
- 12-point font
- Well-organized with headings and subheadings

I want to leave any other specifics fairly open ended to allow each group some freedom in how they format their papers, but if you have any other questions on formatting or if you want to confirm that your paper is formatted well, feel free to email me.

Stage 3: For Stage 3, your group will record a video presentation. In this presentation, you will informally present what was discussed in your group paper – explaining what your concepts are, how these concepts show up in the media, why these concepts are important to study, etc. Once you have recorded this video, you should upload it to some site that everyone will have access to and post this video to the discussion board. I will create a unique discussion board for these submissions around when Stage 3 is assigned.

Additionally – since it would be difficult to include these clips in the presentation itself without potentially running into copyright issues – each group is expected to include YouTube links for their examples in their discussion board post with their presentation video.

While not a requirement, I also encourage feedback on these presentation posts. Let the other groups know what you liked about their projects, or what you found interesting!

Also note that I am mandating full participation from each member of the group. In the event that a group member does not cooperate, assuming you have first discussed this with the group member and attempted to resolve this issue within the group, contact me. I will decide if the level of participation demonstrated by the group member(s) justifies a reduced evaluation for that particular member. Even if a group member fails to participate, you are still responsible for completing the project, but you will not be penalized as a group if a member does not participate.

Exams

There will be no exams for this course!
