INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH (since 2008)

Faculty Affiliate, European Studies Center, University of Florida.

Developed and taught upper-level undergraduate course on European Population Issues in European Union certificate program (4 times between 2003 and 2010). Received a Course Enhancement Award ($3,000) to develop and teach this course again in Fall 2023. Participated in faculty training seminars on the EU (2003) at University of Florida and in Brussels. Contributed to online resource list on Ukraine, serve as faculty resource on social and demographic issues (2022).

Cross-national Analyses of European Values Surveys: Attitudes about Fertility, Gender

Koropecykj-Cox, Tanya, and Alin M. Ceobanu. Analyzed data from 26 countries on attitudes about childlessness. Presented at the European Population Conference, Vienna, Austria, September 2010.

Koropecykj-Cox, Tanya, Alin M. Ceobanu, and Zeynep Copur (Hacettepe University, Ankara, Turkey). Analyzed data from 26 countries on attitudes about childlessness. Presented at the European Population Conference, Vienna, Austria, September 2010.

Developing as a multi-year long-term project. This cross-national research will examine the intersections of pronatalism, egalitarian gender attitudes, and the rise of pro-right nativism in Europe. We have used data on attitudes in the European Values Surveys from 1999-2004 and 2008 and plan to add in analyses of the most current wave. We are also mentoring graduate students in analyzing multiple waves of U.S. General Social Surveys and cross-national data (International Social Survey Programme).

Cross-national Research on Attitudes about Childbearing, Family, and Gender

Koropecj-Cox, Tanya and Zeynep Copur (Hacettepe University, Ankara, Turkey). "University Students' Perceptions of Childless Couples and Parents in Ankara, Turkey." Used data collected by Dr. Copur from 850 university students in Ankara, with a research design developed by Tanya Koropecj-Cox and comparing Turkish data with 1,200 surveys completed by university students in Florida. Visited Family & Consumer Sciences Department, Hacettepe University, in September 2010.

Project includes Dr. Yoshimi Kataoka and Dr. Takashi Fukino of Shimane University, Shimane, Japan. In Fall 2012, Dr. Kataoka presented our collaborative research paper, entitled, "International Comparative Study on the Structure of Attitudes Toward Gender Role Norms" at the International Congress of Family and Consumer Science in Antalya, Turkey. In Summer 2013, Drs. Kataoka and Fukino received funding from the Japanese government for a multi-year study (2013-2016), comparing attitudes about gender norms in the U.S., Turkey, and Japan (funded travel to Japan in Summer 2014). New data were collected at each site in 2015-2016, with on-going data analyses and writing.
