Course Description:

How do you make sense of people when they argue that they are “pro-” or “anti-globalization”? Why are financial crises, environmental crises, and health crises also now increasingly experienced as global crises? How are goods, capital, and people moving around the world in new ways? How do these movements change politics locally and globally? How do they relate to national security and national sovereignty? Why does increasing global interconnectedness between countries also lead to greater inequality in countries? How are we all connected together, and who are “we”?

This course aims to help you start answering these sorts of questions by examining globalization in all its diverse forms of worldwide interconnection. Such interconnections include economic ties, political ties, social ties, and ecological ties. These ties can be analyzed independently, but they also need to be understood in terms of how they operate in conjunction with one another to produce the overall effect that has been given the single label “Globalization.” At the end of this course, you will come away with more than just some additional knowledge and skills. More importantly, you will have learned how to ask your own questions about global dynamics, and you will have learned about new sources that will help you set about doing research and answering your questions. Ultimately, a successful experience in this course will lead you to think more actively about how you yourself exist within a global context and how you can work within global ties to change them for the better.

Learning Objectives:

Students will learn to:

- Describe the main economic and political interdependencies shaping our world
- Understand the debates over globalization and why it is such a contested term
- Critically engage different intellectual arguments about the desirability of global economic and political trends and alternative possible futures (critical thinking)
- Improve your communication skills via the exercises (written and video based) about global issues

Definitions of student work:

a) Active Learning Projects

These projects will require students to review the lectures, read the chapters, watch documentary videos on globalization and analyze and apply the module key concepts. In some weeks, you will apply your learning by producing a teaching tool, such as a poster or presentation. In other weeks, you will participate in a debate. You must complete 5 out of a possible 8 active learning projects.

b) Globalization Glossary and Quizzes

Each week students will be asked to define several keywords from the textbook and other course materials and record them in your globalization glossary. The glossary will act as your study guide for three reading quizzes over the semester, each of which represents 10% of your grade.

Students Requiring Accommodations

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter which must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

U Matter, We Care

Your well-being is important to the University of Florida. The U Matter, We Care initiative is committed to creating a culture of care on our campus by encouraging members of our community to look out for one another and to reach out for help if a member of our community is in need. If you or a friend is in distress, please contact umatter@ufl.edu so that the U Matter, We Care Team can reach out to the student in distress. A nighttime and weekend crisis counselor is available by phone at 352-392-1575. The U Matter, We Care Team can help connect students to the many other helping resources available including, but not limited to, Victim Advocates, Housing staff, and the Counseling and Wellness Center. Please remember that asking for help is a sign of strength. In case of emergency, call 9-1-1.

Course Evaluations

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations in their Canvas course menu under GatorEvals, or via <https://ufl.bluera.com/ufl/>. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summaries of course evaluation results are available to students at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/public-results/>."

Materials and Supplies Fees

There are no additional fees for this course.

University Honesty Policy

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge which states, "We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: "On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment." The Honor Code (<https://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code/>) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel.
