COVID-19 guidance:

- If you are not vaccinated, get vaccinated. Vaccines are readily available and have been demonstrated to be safe and effective against the COVID-19 virus. Visit one.ufl.edu for screening / testing and vaccination opportunities.
- If you are sick, stay home. Please call your primary care provider if you are ill and need immediate care or the UF Student Health Care Center at 352-392-1161 to be evaluated.

Course Description:

Since the Great Recession that broke out in 2008, growing levels of economic inequality and pernicious inequalities concerning issues of race, gender, sexuality have become prominent in the news and public awareness. In this course, we will survey major theoretical perspectives and empirical studies on social inequality. In the first part of the course, we will examine different forms of inequality regarding class, race, gender, and sexuality in the U.S. The second part covers discussions of general explanations of inequality. Part 3 focuses on the impact of social inequality, especially how it impacts health inequalities, environmental justice, and social movements. We will conclude our discussion by adding a global perspective in the end.

Course Objectives:

By the end of the course students will:

- Critically discuss and analyze social inequality in relation to categories of identity such as race, gender, class, and sexual orientation.
- Have a general understanding of structural reasons behind social inequality and consequences of inequality.
- Understand historical and contemporary theories about social inequality and be able to apply specific theoretical perspective(s) to everyday life that touch upon inequality issues.

Overall, through exploring the forms, explanations, and impacts of social inequality, the course intends to develop students' abilities to recognize, understand, and analyze the complexities of social inequality, abilities of analytical and critical thinking, as well as abilities to write effectively.

Course Format

This course will take a mixed format of lecture, student presentation, debates, and organized discussion. Students are expected to have read readings assigned for each class meeting and to be ready to discuss the relevant materials in a knowledgeable way. Failure to keep up with readings will limit your ability to both contribute to and learn from the class interactions; it also will undermine your capacity to perform well on assignments and achieve a good grade in the course. Some of these readings are quite challenging, so be sure to allow plenty of time to give them adequate attention.

Course Requirements and Grading:

Students' active participation is essential for this course. You should do all required readings prior to class (supplemental readings are not required). You are expected to post questions on Canvas before class and to participate in class discussion. It is also required to submit 3 response papers on the material, make a presentation of supplemental material, hand in an outline of your final research paper, make a presentation of the research project, and submit your final paper in the end, etc.

Attendance and Participation in Discussion (25%)

- Attendance & in-class participation (10%)

Students are expected to attend class regularly and actively participate in class discussion.

- Discussion posts on Canvas (15%)

To facilitate thought-provoking and informative conversations during class, for each week, students are expected to submit discussion posts about the required readings via Canvas. Discussion posts should contain the following: 1) Two interesting and/or new takeaways (things you did not know) from the readings—one for Tues and the other for Thursday; 2) Two questions that help stimulate class discussion—one for Tues and the other for Thursday. ATTN: for classes without assigned readings, no post is required to be posted. The posts are due on Canvas by 3pm on Mondays (except for the first class and for classes without readings). For instance, post for the readings of Week 2 is due on Monday of that week.

In class discussion, you may be asked to provide further thoughts on your posts. Students who fail to share their discussion questions/comments during class when asked will receive an automatic zero for this assignment, even if they uploaded their discussion post prior to class. Therefore, it is crucial to be prepared to discuss before coming to class.

Reading guide: take notes and think about the following questions when do the readings.

- 1) What is the author's explanatory objective? Pay special attention to how this is defined and operationalized.
- 2) What is the author's argument?
- 3) What is the logic connecting 1) and 2)? How convincing do you find this logic?
- 4) What are the intellectual roots and/or empirical inspiration for the argument?
- 5) Is the research design and methodology appropriate for the questions being asked?
- 6) What types of evidence, if any, is provided for the argument? Does the evidence actually support the intended argument? What type of evidence would strengthen or weaken the argument?

*For readings with quantitative analysis, if you have problems with the statistical part, you may skim it and focus on the nontechnical part.

Response Papers (30%)

Write 3 concise response papers, 1-2 double-spaced pages (double-spaced, size 12 font, Times New Roman, 1-inch margins), on topics which interest you most. For each response paper, select at least two readings for that week (feel free to choose supplementary readings), and submit the paper before the start of Thursday class of that week. For example, if you wrote a response paper for Week 2, it should be due by 3pm on Thursday of Week 2.

Response papers for a particular week must be based on that week's readings, as they are intended to help you reflect more deeply on the readings and prepare for lecture and class discussions. Please refrain from merely summarizing them. Instead, make a brief summary and give an in-depth analysis on the readings. It is necessary to engage readings to make an argument. You may compare different readings to show how the information and arguments in one reading corroborate or contradict those in another reading, discuss how one reading sheds light on the content of another, or explain why the argument of the reading(s) is convincing (or not). Use the questions listed in the reading guide above as a guide for analyzing the readings and be sure to state your argument clearly in the introduction.

Papers should be submitted via the course Canvas page.

1 st response paper	Must be written between Week 2 and Week 5
2 nd response paper	Must be written between Week 6 and Week 9
3 rd response paper	Must be written between Week 10 and Week 14

LATE PAPERS WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED.

Student Presentations (15%):

You are expected to present a synopsis and discussion of a supplemental reading for the course (attached after each week's required readings). In this presentation (no more than 15 minutes), you should introduce the main idea of the text, use your own language and examples to explain the arguments of the author(s), and provide a few discussion questions in relation to the overall theme of the course. Using these discussion questions, you are expected to engage with audience and to lead a brief discussion. Your presentation will be graded based on the clarity of your presentation, the depth of your understanding of the reading, your interactions with the audiences, etc.

Documentary Reflections: responses to documentary review questions (5%):

Questions about documentaries that will be screened during class are available on Canvas. Answers to them are expected to be submitted via Canvas by 11:59pm the second day after screening.

Research Paper (25%):

Students must complete a research paper, no more than 4 double-spaced pages (double-spaced, size 12 font, Times New Roman, 1-inch margins). The outline of the term paper is scheduled to submit a month before the end of the class on Canvas. The research paper should make an argument and focus on a central question. You are free to select a topic of interest to you based on the course material and class discussions. More specific guidelines will be offered in the class. Besides the course readings, you should also introduce additional literature. UF librarians and the instructor will help you resolve problems about literature searching. For developing writing skills, you are encouraged to go to the UF Writing Studio for further help (see below the section “UF Campus Resources Services” for details).

* LATE PAPERS WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED.

A SUMMARY OF ALL ASSIGNMENTS

	Grading	Deadlines
Attendance and participation	25%	Discussion posts: 3pm on Mondays
3 response papers	30%	3pm on Thursday
1 presentation of supplemental reading	15%	The date you signed up
Responses to documentary review questions	5%	3pm the second day after screening
Final paper & outline	25%	Outline (5%): 3pm on Nov. 15, 2022 Presentations: Last two classes Final paper: 11:59pm on Dec. 12, 2022

*NO LAPTOPS, TABLETS, OR CELL PHONES ARE ALLOWED IN CLASS.

Grading Scale

Score	Grade	Grade Points
93.4-100	A	4.00
90.0-93.3	A-	3.67
86.7-89.9	B+	3.33
83.4-86.6	B	3.00

Here earning an “A” entails: Excellent mastery of course material, student performance indicates a very high degree of originality, creativity, or both excellent performance in analysis, synthesis, and critical expression, oral or written student works independently with unusual effectiveness.

More information on grades and grading policies is here:

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/grades.aspx>.

Office Hours:

Office hours are a great opportunity to ask additional questions about the course and to discuss your educational career more generally. Feel free to contact me to set up an alternative time, if the scheduled office hours do not work.

Academic Ethics:

The strength of the university depends on academic and personal integrity. In this course, you must be honest and truthful. Ethical violations include cheating, plagiarism, reuse of essays, improper use of the internet and electronic services, unauthorized collaboration, alteration of graded essays, forgery and falsification, lying, facilitating academic dishonesty, and unfair competition.

At UF, students are bound by The Honor Pledge which states, “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code.” On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The Honor Code (<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code/>) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor in this class.

Accommodation for students with disabilities:

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter which must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.
